WHERE LEGENDS PLAY

THE FORMIDABLE BERNHARD LANGER SEEKS A THIRD TITLE AT SNOQUALMIE RIDGE
In 1967, Ste. Michelle Vintners produced its first Cabernet Sauvignon, with guidance and support from the legendary international winemaker André Thelistedeff.

It was the release that put the Washington state wine industry on the map. Still, there were skeptics in those days. “Wine from Washington?” sniffed one sarcastic critic. “What side of the Potomac do the grapes grow on?”

Undeterred, the early pioneers of Washington wine understood the state’s potential—with growing regions that share the same latitude and similar terroir as the great French Bordeaux vineyards. Fifty years later, Washington is the nation’s No. 2 producer of premium wine with more than 50,000 acres planted, nearly 1,000 wineries in operation and 14 designated appellations.

As the state’s leading winery, Chateau Ste. Michelle has enjoyed considerable acclaim, with 22 “Top 100 Wineries of the Year” honors (Wine & Spirits) and 18 “Top 100 Wines” designations (Wine Spectator).

Our landmark chateau near Seattle is one of the most visited wineries in the world.

We’re flattered, but we don’t spend a lot of time polishing our medals. Our goal is to blend craftsmanship with innovation to create exceptional wine experiences. Whether it’s a connoisseur opening a bottle of 93-point* Cabernet Sauvignon from our Canoe Ridge Estate at a dinner party, or a newbie discovering a Columbia Valley Riesling at our Summer Concert Series.

Washington state’s terroir shares similarities with the great wine-producing areas of France.

So let’s toast our first 50 years. But only as motivation to produce even more remarkable Chateau Ste. Michelle wines, moments and memories in the next 50.

Cheers. The best is yet to come.

ON BEHALF OF THE TENS OF THOUSANDS of Boeing employees in the state of Washington who comprise nearly half of Boeing’s global workforce, it is my sincere privilege to welcome you to the 2017 Boeing Classic!

As you may already know, this PGA TOUR Champions event showcases some of the sport’s top-tier talent and is an annual highlight for enthusiastic fans from all over Western Washington and beyond. It is a wonderful opportunity to highlight this beautiful and vibrant region where Boeing builds and delivers approximately 700 airplanes each year, and where we continue to invest in our employees and infrastructure.

The Boeing Company is known worldwide for designing and building incredible airplanes. However, we also pride ourselves on our dedication to building strong relationships and healthy communities in the places our employees call home.

The Boeing Classic is just one important way that Boeing gives back to the Puget Sound community where our employees have lived, worked and raised their families for more than a century. Since the tournament’s inception in 2005, this event has raised more than $6 million to support research at the Benaroya Research Institute at Virginia Mason in Seattle, and other local charities. We are so proud to play a foundational role in this important work.

Also deeply important to me, The Boeing Classic pays tribute to our servicemen and women through Military Appreciation Day, which is always held on the final day of the tournament, Championship Sunday. Currently, Boeing employs approximately 20,000 self-identified veterans with about half of them located here in Washington. We hope you will join us to say a heartfelt “thank you” to these dedicated men and women for all they do to protect our freedoms and our way of life as they, too, enjoy this wonderful weekend.

Thank you so much for joining us this weekend at The Boeing Classic. Enjoy the tournament!

The Boeing Classic has raised more than $6 million for the Benaroya Research Institute at Virginia Mason and other local charities.

WELCOME TO THE 13TH ANNUAL BOEING CLASSIC. We are proud to be part of the incredible professional sports scene in the beautiful Pacific Northwest and honored that you’re here to enjoy an up-close opportunity to be awed by the legends of golf. We look forward to thrilling play from our 81 PGA TOUR Champions professionals as they compete at The Club at Snoqualmie Ridge.

Boeing Classic has a lot to celebrate in 2017. We’d like to thank The Boeing Company, the tournament’s title sponsor and steadfast partner since it began in 2005. Not only is Boeing the largest private employer in Washington, but its commitment to the communities where their employees live and work makes this and countless other charitable and community endeavors possible around the state.

We are also pleased about the many new sponsors and golfers we have this year. Please take some time to visit the new Chateau Ste. Michelle Wine Pavilion or stop and talk with the volunteers from Benaroya Research Institute to learn about exciting advancements they are making related to autoimmune diseases.

We again have one of the best PGA TOUR Champions player lists. This year’s field includes five Boeing Classic champions: Loren Roberts (2009), Bernhard Langer (2010, 2016), Mark Calcavecchia (2011), Scott Dunlap (2014) and Billy Andrade (2015).

Your contributions to Boeing Classic continue to help those in need while also funding researchers who are committed to advancing medical science and saving lives. In the charitable event’s 12-year history, more than $6 million has been raised in support of Benaroya Research Institute at Virginia Mason and other local charities, including The First Tee of Greater Seattle.

We would also like to recognize the many contributions of Ray Conner, vice chairman of The Boeing Company. The tournament’s status as a landmark tradition in the Pacific Northwest is due in part to his unwavering vision and commitment.

To say we are extremely grateful for your support as spectators, sponsors, volunteers and players is an understatement. Each of you is an integral part of what makes Boeing Classic a gem among PGA TOUR Champions events.

ON BEHALF OF PGA TOUR CHAMPIONS, it’s a pleasure to welcome you to the 2017 Boeing Classic. This marks the 13th consecutive year that PGA TOUR Champions will compete in the Greater Seattle area.

Our players have been impressed over the years by the wonderful hospitality and enthusiastic support from the community for this event.

A year ago, World Golf Hall of Famer Bernhard Langer defeated Woody Austin and Kevin Sutherland in a one-hole playoff to win his 29th career title on Tour.

This marks the 17th year of the season-long Charles Schwab Cup competition. A year ago, the Charles Schwab Cup playoffs were introduced. The three-event competition at the close of the season was designed to determine the leading player on PGA TOUR Champions. Bernhard Langer won his third consecutive Charles Schwab Cup at the close of the 2016 season.

Charitable donations on the PGA TOUR have surpassed $2 billion since 1938. This total includes donations made by tournaments on the PGA TOUR, PGA TOUR Champions, Web.com Tour, Mackenzie Tour-PGA TOUR Canada, PGA TOUR China and PGA TOUR Latinoamérica. The Boeing Classic has donated more than $6 million to local charities since its inception. The primary charity this year will be Benaroya Research Institute. A Better Seattle and the First Tee of Greater Seattle are also designated charities.

We value our continued partnership and the commitment The Boeing Company has made to PGA TOUR Champions. We also appreciate the spectators, the staff at The Club at Snoqualmie Ridge, the media and the nearly 800 volunteers for their commitment to making this tournament a huge success.

POINT OF VIEW
Venture out to the 12th hole for a prime photo opportunity: a glimpse of world-famous Snoqualmie Falls.

CANYON COUNTRY
This is one of the most exciting vantage points, where golfers take a risk and drive over Bear’s Canyon or play it safe and lay up in the fairway. Check out the Alaska Airlines Mileage Plan Canyon Club for perks like Birdies for Beer. If a pro makes a birdie on the hole, beers are half price.

NEW NAME, SAME STUNNING COURSE
The Club at Snoqualmie Ridge (formerly TPC Snoqualmie Ridge) opened in 1999 and has been the host of The Boeing Classic since 2005.

FOR STARTERS
This is where the action begins. Hang out with friends in the bleachers or find a spot along the first fairway to see the pros’ second shots up close.

CHATEAU STE. MICHELLE WINE PAVILION
Sip on premier wines of the Pacific Northwest at the Chateau Ste. Michelle Wine Pavilion venue overlooking the spectacular Snoqualmie Ridge scenery.

FINAL SHOT
Late in the day, spectators funnel toward the 18th fairway, a dramatic par 5 that provides natural hillside seating behind the green.

ONE FOR THE AGELESS

Bernhard Langer’s remarkable victory at The Boeing Classic capped a stunning 2016 PGA TOUR Champions campaign.

BY STEWART MOORE
PGA TOUR CHAMPIONS & WEB.COM TOUR

Two-time Masters Tournament champion Bernhard Langer opened the 2016 PGA TOUR Champions season on the heels of a dominant 2015 campaign, which saw him notch two victories, more than $2.3 million in earnings and the third Charles Schwab Cup title of his illustrious career. Early-season victories at the Chubb Classic and Regions Tradition again vaulted Langer to the top of the Charles Schwab Cup money list, setting the stage for arguably the most memorable year of his tenure on the senior circuit. In June, the Tour ventured to venerable Philadelphia Cricket Club for the year’s third senior major championship, the Constellation SENIOR PLAYERS Championship. As the event’s two-time defending champion, Langer was a heavy favorite entering the week, and he more than held up his end of the deal with four brilliant rounds on one of the season’s most demanding courses.

IMPRESSIVE DRIVE
Bernhard Langer, a two-time winner of The Boeing Classic, has also finished second, third and fourth in the tournament. “I just love the course,” he says.
Opening rounds of 71-68-69–208 (2 under par) put Langer three clear of the field with 18 holes to play. But Sunday’s final round featured steady winds and lightening; fast greens, providing more drama than expected. The German duelled throughout the day with Miguel Ángel Jiménez and Joe Durant before icing the proverbial cake with a clutch 6-footer for bogey on the 71st hole and a stellar par save on the 72nd — including a 12-foot putt and unexpected fist pump — to wrap up his third straight SENIOR PLAYERS Championship title.

“When you keep winning, confidence breeds success and success breeds confidence,” Langer says. “When you’re constantly up there, it’s like when Tiger [Woods] was up there almost every time he teed it up. ... You get used to the pressure, you get used to being in the hunt and you get used to winning.”

As arguably one of the hottest golfers in the world, Langer spent his next four events looking for win No. 4 on the year, but failed to convert, even finishing outside the top 10 twice with a season-worst (yes, worst) T13 at the American Family Insurance Championship and a T21 at the U.S. Senior Open.

After a one-week hiatus from tournament play, Langer ventured to the Pacific Northwest to compete in The Boeing Classic, an event in which he had delivered four top-five finishes, including a victory in 2010. Playing a Snoqualmie Ridge course that demands shot-making, patience and endurance, the Boca Raton, Florida, resident began his week with a rather pedestrian (for him) 69 before vaulting into contention on Saturday with a bogey-free 67 to move into a tie for fifth entering Sunday’s third and final round. The 5-under-par tally for the week, which allowed him to match Kevin Sutherland and Woody Austin for the clubhouse lead. When Sauers struggled on the back nine, falling out of contention with a bogey on 17, the trio headed back to the par-5 finishing hole for the sixth playoff in The Boeing Classic’s 12-year history.

“With the precision that has delivered more than 100 career victories around the world, Langer navigated the 18th hole brilliantly, hitting his second shot just 10 yards short of the green while Sutherland and Austin found bunkers galore on the scenic hole. With a simplistic uphill chip to within 3 feet, Langer calmly rolled in the winning birdie putt to notch his fourth win of the year and the 29th of his PGA TOUR Champions career. The victory tied Lee Trevino for second on the all-time victories list; Langer has since moved into solo second.

When asked why his Boeing Classic record is so stellar, Langer struggles to pinpoint any scientific reasoning. “I don’t know,” he says. “I just love the golf course. It’s really a shot maker’s golf course. You have to think a little bit, you have to hit quality shots and obviously always have to make putts.”

Langer, who turns 60 on Sunday, may go down as the greatest player in PGA TOUR Champions history, regardless of whether he matches Hale Irwin’s record of 45 victories. As this publication went to press, Langer had 33. Even more impressive: At nearly every event on the Tour’s 26-tournament schedule, he has achieved some level of success, either via wins, top-10 finishes or low final rounds. When the pundits reflect on golf’s most notable careers, many will point to Langer’s 2016 season as one of the game’s thoroughly dominant campaigns. His come-from-behind win at The Boeing Classic will stand tall as victory No. 4 in a year that produced his fourth Charles Schwab Cup title.

Since no one else has won the cup more than twice, Langer’s fourth certainly capped a season for the ages. But given Langer’s spectacular ability to keep his game in top form for a decade and even improve over previous seasons, it will also exist as one for the ageless.
Quest for the Cup

PLAYOFF FORMAT EXPANDS COMPETITION FOR END-OF-SEASON BONUS PRIZE.

Since 2001, the Charles Schwab Cup has been awarded to the PGA TOUR Champions player amassing the most points based on money winnings. Last year, the tour tweaked the format and created an end-of-year playoff system that keeps more players in the running for the cup right up to the final weekend. Only five events remain in the regular PGA TOUR Champions schedule after this weekend, so The Boeing Classic provides a late-season opportunity for golfers to improve or solidify their positions heading into the playoffs.

Like the PGA TOUR’s FedEx Cup Playoffs, the Charles Schwab Cup Playoffs incorporate three tournaments to determine a points champion, who receives a $1 million bonus. Bernhard Langer has won the cup the past three years and four times in all. This year, the first playoff event is the Dominion Energy Charity Classic in Richmond, Virginia, with the tour’s top 72 money winners entered in the field. The highest-ranked 54 golfers then advance to the second playoff event: the PowerShares QQQ Championship in Thousand Oaks, California. From there, the top 36 will compete at the Charles Schwab Cup Championship in Phoenix, Arizona, in November.

TROPHY HUNTER

Bernhard Langer has won the Charles Schwab Cup four times, including the past three years in a row.

Golf’s Most Interesting Man

With style and swagger, Miguel Ángel Jiménez enters The Boeing Classic for the first time.

BY STEWART MOORE | PGA TOUR CHAMPIONS & WEB.COM TOUR

In a game of tradition, golfers can often blend in easily, especially in the pro ranks. Khaki pants and a solid-colored shirt gave way to white belts, biceps-revealing tops from Sweden and other fashion fads over the years, but the golfing masses generally flocked as one with each new trend.

To declare that so many PGA TOUR players look the same is not a completely inaccurate statement. However, PGA TOUR Champions players are generally a bit more open to flaunting their own styles in a world where fashion pressures are less of a current-day stress.

One player in particular has long maintained his own look and style over the years, transcending any traditions your local member-guest participant would consider normal. Spain’s Miguel Ángel Jiménez won on the European Tour in 1992 and 1994, but it wasn’t until he recorded four victories between 1998 and 1999 that the world took note of the ponytailed, cigar-smoking ball striker who enjoys fast cars, fine wine and life in general.

Now 53, Jiménez has solidified his status as arguably the most recognizable figure on the PGA TOUR Champions circuit, with his cigar lit nearly every hour of the day and distinctive stretching routine that has gone viral on social media. The ponytail, the casual nature of his walk down the fairway and his love of life mask one very important fact: Jiménez has been one of the best players in the world for two decades.

The native of Málaga, Spain, collected 21 victories during a standout European Tour career, including impressive wins at the 1999 Volvo Masters, 2004 BMW International Open, 2008 BMW PGA Championship and 2010 Omega Dubai Desert Classic.

Over his final seven victories on the European Tour — all of which occurred after age 44 — Jiménez posted a 5-0 record in playoffs, defeating some of the world’s best players, not to mention Father Time. As a PGA TOUR Champions player, he has been one of the most consistent performers since turning 50 in 2014, recording nine top-three finishes in his first 21 starts through the 2016 season. Wins during each of his first four seasons on the over-50 Tour put Jiménez in rarefied company, more than validating the claim that his legendary status comes more from the winner’s circle than from that distinctive mesh of style, persona and demeanor.

At this week’s Boeing Classic, Jiménez will make his tournament debut to the joy of the masses who come out to The Club at Snoqualmie Ridge to catch a glimpse of golf’s most interesting man. Enjoy his stretching, his trademark puff on a Cuban cigar and his familiar ponytail. But make sure to take note of his game, because Jiménez has plenty of it.

ANE HUMPHRIES never envisioned becoming a golfer or a golf fan, let alone a longtime PGA TOUR Champions volunteer. The only reason she started playing the game was to spend more time with her husband and sons, who were hitting the links on a regular basis. But since 2005, the Snoqualmie Ridge resident has been a familiar and welcome presence in the Concierge Room of The Club at Snoqualmie Ridge during the week of The Boeing Classic.

“She likes sharing an amusing example of how the Concierge Room prepares for the appearance of Seattle native and hometown favorite Fred Couples. “When he arrives at the course for the first day of the tournament,” Humphries relates, “Freddie always walks in by himself at 6 a.m. to register. When he drives into the parking lot, the security staff radios the Concierge Room with a heads-up that ‘the eagle has landed.’”

The enjoyment Humphries derives from having volunteered at The Boeing Classic for the past dozen years is personally fulfilling — and contagious. Humphries’ husband, Jim, took her advice and has enjoyed volunteering in spectator transportation the past few years. She even sold her brother, who lives in Florida, on the idea of volunteering at a PGA TOUR Champions event. He now works each year at the Allianz Championship in Boca Raton, and Humphries flies down every February to serve as a course distribution volunteer, helping hand out beverages, fruit and snacks.

“If you love the game or just enjoy being involved with a fun charitable event,” Humphries says, “I highly recommend taking the opportunity to enjoy this volunteer experience. Legends of the game, breathtaking views, beautiful summer weather — it doesn’t get much better.”

PUT YOUR HANDS TOGETHER FOR OUR VOLUNTEERS

The Boeing Classic would like to thank the dedicated individuals and community partners who volunteer and support the 13th Annual PGA TOUR Champions event on August 21-27 at The Club at Snoqualmie Ridge. Since the tournament’s inception, more than $6 million has been raised for local charities, including the Benaroya Research Institute at Virginia Mason, an international leader in autoimmune disease research.

BOEING’S COMMITMENT TO COMMUNITIES

Inspire. Innovate. Invest more.

PHOTOGRAPHS COURTESY OF THE BOEING COMPANY

FOR MORE THAN 100 YEARS, Boeing has been innovating to meet the needs of an ever-changing, fast-paced, global environment. Our understanding of how to best connect and support people, businesses and communities allows us to operate and create value in, and for, almost every region of the world. We believe that investing in innovation improves our business and also improves our communities. At Boeing, we practice a holistic approach to charitable giving. In addition to monetary resources, we donate our business and also improves our communities.

LAUNCH PARTY
Children toss paper airplanes to celebrate the launch of the Boeing Academy for STEM Learning at Seattle’s Museum of Flight.

OUR HEROES: TRANSITION, REHABILITATION, FAMILIES.

Our strong, capable men and women of the armed forces serve and protect our nation. Just as we are proud to support them on the front lines, we are also here to offer personal and professional network support and transition opportunities that ease the burden of the military-to-civilian transition process. This includes offering skill development and training for workforce transition; supporting recovery and rehabilitation programs that focus on post-traumatic stress, moral and physical injuries, and suicide; and employee volunteerism in veteran-specific communities. Boeing employs more than 30,000 veterans in Washington. Of those, more than a thousand currently belong to the Boeing Employees Veterans Association (BEVA), which proudly provides to The Boeing Classic volunteers who assist with the Sunday Military Appreciation Day. Additionally, Boeing provides significant grants to support programs with USO/RF6 and Goodwill of the Olympics and Rainer Region that help service members and veterans transition to civilian employment.

GIVING BACK, GIVING DIRECTION

APPLICATION: For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology — helps more than 80,000 students worldwide use math and science to construct robots that compete during local, national and international competitions.

OUR HOME: VIBRANT, DYNAMIC, THRIVING.

Businesses depend on local cultures and communities for talent. Investment in a business is inherently an investment in a local town, city, state and region. But Boeing goes beyond that; looking for high-profile programs that are of significant importance to the local communities where our employees live and work. Why? Because when the social fabric of our communities thrives, so do we – thus continuing the cycle of investment and enhancement.

In Washington, our areas of emphasis include environmental protection, arts and culture and supporting major community events, like The Boeing Classic, which are central to the fabric of life in this state.

OUR EMPLOYEES: CARING, GIVING, HELPING.

Boeing employees make a difference. Their actions and incredible generosity show a deep and abiding commitment to improving our world for the better. Together with our employees, Boeing will continue to drive powerful, lasting improvements in our communities all over the world. We will keep investing in innovation. Inventing novel products. Investing in and engaging with our neighbors in the communities we call home.

Here in Washington, Boeing employees volunteered more than 250,000 hours at local schools and nonprofits last year. In fact, you will find hundreds of Boeing employees and retirees among the ranks of Boeing Classic volunteers helping to make this tournament a success. Additionally, for the Puget Sound branch of the Boeing Employees Community Fund distributed $75 million to 60 nonprofit Washington agencies focused on housing, hunger, child care and social services in 2016, and has contributed more than $600 million to the community since its inception in 1981.

SOUTHERN DESCENT

THIS 554-YARD PAR FIVE is an impressive starting hole. Bunkers come into play on each shot, so accuracy is essential. A well-placed second shot on the left side of the fairway facilitates a clear approach to the guarded green. Proper club selection sets up a strong birdie opportunity.

BACKYARD

THE 410-YARD SECOND HOLE is a challenging par four. With a generous landing area, the hole’s only real obstacle on the tee shot is a bunker on the right side of the fairway. Still, the tricky, undulating green doesn’t yield many birdies.
THE RIDGE

This long par four is rated the No. 1 handicap hole on the course. At 462 yards, it requires a solid drive if a player hopes to reach the green in two. Deep bunkers front the green to the left and a grassy swale awaits any shot drifting right. It plays into the prevailing wind and slightly uphill.

TWIN FIRS

This 426-yard par four presents a stunning downhill tee shot. Fir trees and bunkers guard both sides of the fairway and a creek cuts across it at the bottom of the hill. The green is heavily guarded short right and long, making proper club selection imperative.

FALL CITY

Named for its view of Fall City and the Redmond-Fall City valley, this long par four accepts a robust tee shot. A wide fairway and generous downhill landing area allow the ball to funnel toward the green, but a steep cliff drops off left, so be sure to avoid going too far to that side. The downhill approach plays shorter than it seems as the ball releases toward the hole.

CASCADE

The aptly named 226-yard par three offers a postcard view of the Cascade Mountains from the tee box. Don’t let the vista distract you from a challenging downhill shot to a heavily guarded green. With bunkers short left and long right, playing the ball from right to left is the safer bet.
DECEPTION
ONE OF THE SHORTEST PAR FOURS on the course, 375-yard Deception presents several challenges appropriate to its name, such as a small lake in front of the tee box, an elevated fairway, fairway bunkers and deep greenside bunkers.

THE NARROWS
This 529-yard par five is lengthened by a narrow landing area and a lake protecting the front and left side of the green. A well-placed second shot to the right of the fairway allows the player to attack the pin, using the full length of the green for safety. Going for the flag in two is risky because water or sand guard all sides of the green.

SCREAMING EAGLE
This 207-yard par three over water and bunkers will test even the strongest nerves. With a carry of 196 yards over Eagle Lake and an additional 8 yards over the greenfront bunker, the 9th can ruin a decent round with one poorly executed swing. Commitment to going for it is crucial.

BUNKER HILL
A 353-yard uphill hole, this is the shortest par four on the course, with deep fairway bunkers coming into play off the tee. A precise long iron or fairway wood is the safest play. Deep bunkers also protect an undulating green.
NORTHWEST PASSAGE

This 484-yard par four is long and tough, with a series of bunkers protecting the fairway right. A tee shot to the left sets up a long approach to a tiered green, which is guarded by deep bunkers on the left. A two putt par is a good result at this challenging hole.

THE FALLS

The black tee box on this par four offers a view eastward toward famous Snoqualmie Falls. A great tee shot goes right of a series of fairway bunkers protecting the left side. The two-tier green demands a precise approach to set up a birdie try. Downhill putts can be slick.

BEAR’S CANYON

Mount Si and the surrounding Cascade mountain range frame this 210-yard, downhill par three, one of the most spectacular holes on the course. Bunkers lurk short and left of the green, so a right-to-left tee shot will release to the hole, setting up a birdie opportunity.

A LIFE WELL PLAYED

September 10, 1929 – September 25, 2016

In 1969, Arnold Palmer was invited to pilot a Boeing 747 before the plane entered commercial service. The Boeing Classic Opening Ceremony honors Palmer, whose fly-bys as he departed tournaments were his signature in the 1960s and ‘70s. Join us as volunteers hold Palmer’s iconic umbrella in a tribute to the golf legend.

Valleys

The 590-yard par five boasts lovely views of several valleys slicing through the Cascade range. A strong tee shot and a well-placed second shot set up a good angle to the protected green. A valley running across the center of the green requires a precise approach.

Rat’s Nest

At 380 yards, the inviting 16th has 11 bunkers awaiting an errant shot, so a well-placed drive is a must on this par four. Falling short on the approach to an elevated green leaves a difficult bunker shot, so choose your club wisely.

Craftsman

The 498-yard finishing hole proves anything but easy. Shortest of the par fives, it plays uphill toward the Craftsman-style clubhouse. Embraced by a natural amphitheater, the fairway and green are guarded by 16 deep bunkers. A precise approach shot offers a solid birdie bid. As you line up your putt, imagine 30,000 fans ready to cheer as the ball rolls in for a PGA tournament victory.

On the Rock

The 211-yard par three requires a difficult tee shot — over water and an enormous rock — to a green divided by a slope into right and left tiers. A precise tee shot feeds toward the hole.

A 7-year-old with type 1 diabetes stays active and hopeful.

Peter is a typically active 7-year-old from Seattle. Good days are filled with climbing trees, riding his bike, running from his older brother, dog-paddling in the pool and flipping on the trampoline. Constant motion is just a normal part of life.

Four years ago, though, life for Peter and his family changed forever. Days before his third birthday, Peter was diagnosed with type 1 diabetes, a lifelong disease in which the immune system attacks the insulin-producing cells in the pancreas, leaving the body unable to regulate blood sugar levels.

Type 1 diabetes is an autoimmune disease, one in a family of more than 80 that share the same basic cause. The immune system, designed to protect the body, makes a mistake and attacks healthy cells in tissues and organs.

On most days, having type 1 diabetes does not slow Peter down. But keeping his body running smoothly requires a never-ending regimen of eating, insulin injections and finger pricks for blood samples. For Peter’s parents, Thatcher and Staci, standing in the middle of a swim lesson and given him insulin on a merry-go-round is not a carefully controlled medical environment. It’s a pit stop at Talladega.

Peter doesn’t let type 1 diabetes slow him down, but the disease does keep his parents on their toes. They carefully monitor Peter’s diet, exercise and insulin intake to maintain a stable blood sugar level.

“With a type 1 diabetic,” says Staci, “we give insulin to help him live a healthier life while delaying or even preventing onset of the disease compared to the general population. A simple blood test may identify the disease risk before symptoms appear. Those at risk may have an opportunity to enroll in a prevention trial.”

Predicting Type 1 Diabetes

Scientists have learned that family members of someone with type 1 diabetes have 15 times the chance of developing the disease compared to the general population. A simple blood test may identify the disease risk before symptoms appear. Those at risk may have an opportunity to enroll in a prevention trial.

Preventing Type 1 Diabetes

Clinical research studies at BRI are looking at how to extend people’s ability to produce insulin when they are newly diagnosed with type 1 diabetes. Since even small amounts of natural insulin production can decrease the long-term complications of diabetes and improve short-term clinical management, scientists search for ways to keep these remaining cells producing insulin.

Halting Type 1 Diabetes

BRI and Seattle Children’s Research Institute are pioneering the use of gene editing techniques to control type 1 diabetes. The long-term goal would be to take blood cells that target the pancreas, change them into protective cells and inject them back into the patient’s bloodstream to stop the attacks in the pancreas.
The Boeing Classic is honored to recognize the men and women who serve our country by continuing our annual Military Appreciation Day on Sunday, August 27. The tournament, in conjunction with the PGA TOUR Champions and local sponsors, will honor our country and those who have fought to protect it in nearly all aspects of the day’s events at The Club at Snoqualmie Ridge. We would like to express our sincerest appreciation to the USO NW for hosting the Patriots Outpost atop the 18th green and for providing complimentary food and drink to military families. Also a huge special thanks to all the members of the Boeing Employees Veterans Association (BEVA) for joining us for Military Appreciation Day and supporting this wonderful event.
